ANNUAL EXAMINATION. 3.—The results of the English examination: as adjudged by me for prize purposes, are highpasses, 94 as opposed to 97 last year, is perhaps chiefly attributable to the following causes; one for six months, and one Chinese assistant has been further absent on sick leave for two months before the examination: the forced promotion of boys into classes for which they were not yet fitted, and the admission of others into classes The CHAIRMAN-My dear sir, how many years for which they were not qualified, are two considerable factors in the same result, due to lack of accommodation consequent on the delay in the I completion of Victoria College. It is moreover interesting to observ from the results obtained by Wong Fan and Chenng Tsoi in both examinations that the standard of the Oxford and Cambridge Local Examinations is identical: and further that the standard of excellence at this school corresponds with both, for Cheung Tsoi was Morrison Scholar in 1887; Wong Fan in 1888; and Abdool Hoosen, with Hyndman as proxime accessit, in 1889.

GOVERNMENT SCHOLARSHIP. 12.—I was much disappointed at not being able to present any candidates for the Biennia Competition for the Government Scholarship. The three boys who might have passed a credit able examination are naturally the three named above. Unfortunately, however, none of these was available; one being below the minimum of age; another wanting two or three months of

It is, however, much to regretted that owing to an unaccountable delay in the erection of the Latrines and Coolie Quarters, there seems at present little likelihood o the new Scholastic year being opened in the new building. The delay of a month or two in transferring the present boys and admitting the new boys will have a tendency to mar the sponess of the school work of the year 1839. > SUMMARY OF THE "KWANG-PAO."

1st April. A proposal is suggested in the leader of today that, in order to prevent famines and to obviate all the distress and calamity, that are invariably the natural consequences of such visitaas to keep sufficient supplies for years of dearth. It is suggested that every year farmers and landowners should contribute a certain percentage of their rice crops, and that those who are not concerned in rice plantations and cannot consequently make contributions in kind, should Crown, as "ar independent State," as in the case pay a certain sum yearly to be kept in a separate fund. The contributions in rice to be likewise hearded in Government granaries and the supplies renewed every three years to avoid deterioration and fermentation.

Another raid was made by the Wei-yuan Li on gamblers over at Honam. This is only a proof with the internal administration of the North what energy and real squeezes stir up.

THE THIBETAN QUESTION.

In the House of Commons on the 22nd Felaugh said there was a phrase in the Address ference was made to "negotiations" for "preventing encreachment on Her Majesty's rights over the territory of Sikkim;" but whom did Thibet begin to quarrel with us? Was it not only after we were going to send a strong soiontific and exploring expedition there? Was it not in fact we who from the year beginning made that quarrel which had arisen? How far again, be asked, was the Government getting embroiled in "negotiations" with China ? Sir J. Gorst, in the course of a long speech, said he was most astonished at the observations which the member for Northumpton had made with reference to Sikkim. The hon, gentleman wished to know when the people of Thibet began quarrelling with us. They began quarrelling withous when they invaded the territory of Sikkim with an armed force, when they built a fort on British territory, and occupied that fort for considerable time. It was really mensirons to say that the Indian Government had manifested an aggressive disposition in the operations which had been recently carried out. All that the Indian Government had done in Sikkim was this. After enduring for an almost unreasonable length of time the presence of this hostile and invading force in their territory, after giving to the Chinese Government ample time as the suzerain Power to compel its vassal to remove this great outrage and insult to a friendly Power the Government of India at last, when every effort had failed, expelled to their own territory the wrongfully invading force, and abstained from anything like a counter-invasion. He did not suppose that the history of the world had exhibited a greater example of forbearance than the stoppage of the victorious Iudian army on the frontier of Thibet and the absence of any kind of revenge or retaliation for the gross outrage received by the Indian Government. The negotiations now in progress were going on under the anspices of the Government of China, which had in the most loyal manner done its atmost to prevent the incursions of a vassal State. Those negotiations had for their object the maintenance of peace on the Sikkim frontier without the necessity for the large body of troops which, in the present condition of affairs, had to be kept there. The hop, member had asked whether we were likely to he embroiled with Chins. No: there was no likelihood of that. On the contrary, the affair of Sikkim had comented the friendship between this country and China. The loss of life which had occurred at Sikkim was not in any sense attributable to any want of co-operation on the

Mr. Paul J. Naftel, of the Royal Water Coar Society, has a room all to himself at the ne Art Society's. Round the walls are 66 of so of views in North Wales. Nobody will be rprised to hear that a large number of these illiant little drawings of the tiny Channel land are already sold. Quite a brisk business s done at the Private View the other day. he rich colouring of the views makes them pecially agreeable from a decorative point of ew. The intense blue of the sea is beyond deription. There are only two landing places Sark. In one-Havre Gosselin-athletic ople, by clinging to a chain, can just manage pull themselves up the cliff, several handred of high. In the other-Le Crouse-you crawl rough a tunnel and emerge some distance

A correspondent, whose accuracy can be red on, sends a contemporary a tiger story which out of the common run. A Good named odres, a resident of a village called Dorles ich is somewhere in the highlands of the Cen-Il Provinces, while cutting grass in the jungle th several of his fellows, was attacked by a er. Fortunately he caught sight of the ast while it was on the rush; and though quite armed faced about and stood up to it with his s. The tiger finding himself holdly confrontswerved, but in passing made a snap at the in's outstretched hand which took the thumb an off at the hilt. Our correspondent saw the coky Gond a week or two afterwards, when the ambless hand was already healing rapidly der the simple remedies applied by his breth-; and made arrangements for sending him o a dispensary. Everyone will hope that dree may have a long enjoyment of the life t he so narrowly managed to save .- Pioneer.

James Snowden, the jookey who died early month, was the great popular idol of Norrn racing mon, who would not for a moment ar of any other horseman being conceded preence in the profession. Some good stories as in Yorkshire, are not given to saying much, are very dry in their way of putting things. e of the best is of a little conversation been the jockey and Tom Green at a Manchesmeeting, when Snowden was weighing out paratory to riding for the big Beverley iner: Jemmy was a good deal the worse for reshments (a circumstance which never apred to affect his jockeyship unfavourably) and w. it. Just as he was in the scale, Tom een quietly tucked a hood and blinkers under orse is a rogue which won't run straight bood were taken away, and the regue won verly enough without them, thanks to a fine of riding on the part of Snowden.

lakluyt tells us of a certain Master Killingrd was five feet two inches long. It is also a beard which swept the ground as he ked. These hirsute growths have hitherte unrivalled of their kind; but they are now altogether in the shade by a beard which resched the extraordinary length of ten and, we are assured, is still growing. The er, a certain I ouis Goulon, is a foreman of works at Montlucon in the French depart. t of the Allier. He was born in the Nievro at the early age of twelve was obliged to o. No sooner was the razor used, however, whiskers, moustache, and beard became unmanageable, and, notwithstanding the vity of all the barbers and the nostrums of Il the quacks in the department soon quite red the waistcost of the youthful patriarch. lon is now well advanced in years, and his d, which was originally brown, is almost e. The silvery hairs are, however, as vigoas their chestnut predecessors, and daily case in length. Goulon has learned to turn monstrous appendage to practical account, he uses it as a comforter and chest preserver. sometimes even as a belt. More profitable as of employing it have been offered him by Barnum and other eminent showmen, but out success.
